DUMFRIES, VIRGINIA’S OLDEST CHARTERED TOWN

Dumfries, the largest Town in Prince William County, was chartered in 1749 by a group of men with vision that included the first families of Northern Virginia, Washington, Lee, Grayson and Mason, among others. These founding fathers recognized the importance of the site and decided that a town and port should be established on Quantico Bay for easy access to ship tobacco to England and to receive the manufactured goods not available in the Colonies. This site became the Town of Dumfries and was located on the Kings Highway, the only road linking all the colonies.

It was formally established on 60 acres of land at the head of the harbor of Quantico Creek, provided by John Graham. He named the town after his birthplace, Dumfries, Scotland. It grew in wealth and importance as a major tobacco port that rivaled New York and Boston until soil erosion and silting of the port caused Dumfries’ demise.

Today, Dumfries is known as the oldest continually chartered Town in Virginia.
